

Guidelines for the Use of Brand Logo & Icons

PRIMARY LOGO

The primary logo is the preferred logo. It should be used in most applications.

The black or white logo variations must be used when placed on a darker or image background.

SECONDARY LOGO

The secondary logo should be used for all group applications where the generic Phase3 brand is used. It should be used when dealing with a space issue, where the main logo becomes too small or doesn't fit into it's allocated space.

e.g. the header on the website.

LOGO - APPLICATION - MINIMUM SIZE

To ensure maximum reproduction quality of the Phase3 identity, the primary logo may not be reduced smaller than 20mm.

The secondary logo may not be reduced smaller than 10mm.

LOGO - INCORRECT IDENTITY CONFIGURATION & COLOUR USAGE

The correct colour application of the Phase3 primary, secondary and tertiary logo should only ever be used as they are shown in previous pages of this document. No other colour application of the identity may be used and colour may not be mixed.

These logos may not be stretched in any way. The icon must always appear to the left of the brand name. These rules apply to all logo variants.

FONTS

The font used throughout any and all design and communication is Century Gothic.

As the font family is extensive, no secondary font is to be used.

COLOUR PALETTE PRIMARY & SECONDARY

The Phase3 primary colour palette may be used in Pantone, CMYK and RGB colours to allow for use across all platforms of print and electronic media. Any deviation in colour, spot, process or RGB contrary to these colours is not acceptable and is not permitted under any circumstances.

COLOUR PALETTE SECONDARY

The Phase3 tertiary colour palette must be used only as an accent to the primary and secondary colour palette (e.g. background colours, iconography, etc). It may be used in CMYK and RGB colours to allow for use across all platforms of print and electronic media. Any deviation in colour, spot, process or RGB contrary to these colours is not acceptable and is not permitted under any circumstances.
